

WORKSHOP

with Anne Johnson

Bewerbungsworkshop

Writing an application for an internship, a scholarship or a new job requires good preparation, because the competition is enormous these days. This workshop will explain how to present yourself in the best possible way by highlighting different ways to skillfully bring your own individual strengths and motivations to the fore. This will help the course participants to confidently choose their own (career) path. The first step is to write a resume. This should show the extent to which one has already been involved (or is currently involved) in the relevant field in order to create a basis for the targeted position. In addition, the correct behavior in a job interview is also practiced. Those who have already prepared a resume are welcome to bring it along.
