Debate Workshop

Many high schools in the U.S. and Britain have debating teams for students to consider different points of view and practice expressing themselves in a good and fair and fun argument. The aim of this workshop is to give students the opportunity to practice using their English-speaking skills to gain confidence in speaking and expressing themselves and to have fun doing this. In this workshop, we will review the use of discussion tactics, look at some topic-based vocabulary if needed and check any grammar issues which might lead to misunderstandings. Students will be introduced to the basic concepts, and structure of debating in a fun and interactive format.

In pairs, small groups and then teams, exercises will help participants to consider several perspectives of an issue they may or may not agree with. After preparation and discussion about the both sides of controversial issues, the teams will participate in mini-debates against one another, followed by self-evaluation and feedback of the results.
